

Graphics Design Officer

Communications Team Description:

Our team is a dedicated group of designers, creators and creative thinkers, all working together to elevate Asclepios' brand. We ensure that all visual elements align with our mission and each team member plays an essential role in creating impactful designs. Some of the key objectives include improving the website, designing mission patches and managing different social media platforms among others. If you enjoy thinking outside of the box while working with like-minded people, we would love to welcome you in our team! This year, Asclepios is looking to boost its presence in both the social media world as well as the scientific community to cement itself as a leading student analogue research organisation.

Graphics Design Officer Description:

As a graphics design officer, you will design material that enhances the organisations visual identity and aid in the creation of graphics for social media and website related content. The aim of this role is to help boost engagement and strengthen the Asclepios brand image.
